

Thank you!

Thank you to all of the many people who make WoodFair possible. Our sponsors, our steering committee, our judges, our volunteers, the vendors, the woodworkers who enter the exhibition, everyone at Almquist Lumber Co., our media sponsors who help get the word out, all the people who provide great food, the people who donate raffle and silent auction prizes, and the people who provide demonstrations and classes, all deserve our thanks for helping to maintain the tradition of WoodFair and its celebration of wood. We thank College of the Redwoods for establishing this fine tradition, for administering the WoodFair classes, and for help with publicity and printing.

Finally, thank you to the public whose enthusiasm for WoodFair keeps us going.

Thank you!

Welcome to the 21st annual WoodFair. This is the third year that Humboldt Woodworking Society, Almquist Lumber Company, and College of the Redwoods have collaborated in the presentation of WoodFair. This is the premier celebration of wood the North Coast has to offer. We hope to continue this fine tradition for at least 21 more years to come.

This is one of many activities that Humboldt Woodworking Society participates in each year. As a nonprofit organization, we strive to increase public awareness and knowledge about woodworking, to support and provide woodworking education, both formal and informal, and to foster best practices in woodworking including sustainable use of wood and woodworking techniques that produce durable objects of beauty and utility, while encouraging community among woodworkers.

Enjoy WoodFair 2010!

Humboldt Woodworking Society
